

PROJECT MANAGEMENT QUALIFICATIONS ONLINE

Attain an industry relevant, nationally accredited project management qualification in less than 12 months...

Project management is a mainstay of modern organisations across all industry sectors, and has evolved from its traditional roots in the construction, IT and engineering industries. The study of project management now provides a global framework in which all project managers have a common understanding of the terminology used and the methodologies employed.

There is an unprecedented demand for project managers from entry level through to program and portfolio project managers. Australian employers have described project management as one of the most highly regarded and sought after management disciplines.

In response to the demand for sophisticated project management training options, the Australian Institute of Management offers a Certificate IV and Diploma of Project Management online. The qualifications are based on the Institute's highly respected face-to-face coursework and have been developed for online learners with the input of project management experts.

Certificate IV in Project Management ONLINE

Enrolment Fee: $1900

This qualification is for project team members who contribute to the management of projects but do not necessarily have the overall responsibility for delivering project outcomes. Assessment at this level will require students to demonstrate their contribution to project management across eight key functional areas.

Diploma of Project Management ONLINE

Enrolment Fee: $2375

This qualification is for project managers responsible for the successful delivery of large and small projects. Assessment at this level will require students to demonstrate their strategic management of multiple projects and their understanding of complex aspects of project management including budgeting, earned value and benefits management.

Enrolment fee discounts available for Members of AIM.

DYNAMIC CONTENT INTERACTIVE LEARNING CONVENIENT DELIVERY

AIMQ Online offers managers access to first rate, flexible learning like never before.

No matter what location, time-zone or lifestyle demands – managers anywhere can achieve business and industry relevant qualifications when and where they choose through AIMQ Online.

Learners can complete single programs and qualifications in sought after subject areas including project management and eight other nationally accredited qualifications including frontline management and general management.

“ I checked out a number of online providers. Only AIMQ Online provided the depth of content I require and a dedicated coach. The student support is outstanding. ”

AIMQ Online eliminates the need for time poor managers to take consecutive days out of work time to train. Studying online allows learning to occur in manageable “chunks” around work and personal commitments.

Many AIMQ Online learners are regionally based Queensland managers seeking contemporary, engaging and relevant online learning opportunities to expand their management knowledge and ability.

The project management qualifications have experienced high demand as the online course work and content is brought to life through rich media and engaging formats.

The content is also updated in real time to accommodate relevant examples or topical discussion points as they arise, ensuring a dynamic learning experience which is supported by coaches who are contactable via email and phone as required.

That means learning online with AIMQ breaks through the isolation barrier. In an online format, users are able to ask questions and engage in discussion about assessment or content with each other or with a subject matter expert.
